Informational Interviewing: Find Mentors and a Future That Interests You

Do you want to find a college, major or career path that really interests and excites you? The future can be daunting, come learn what informational interviewing is and how you can use it to find the best path for you. We will do interactive activities together to help you practice skills and leave the workshop with a plan. No previous experience is necessary.

Carolyn is currently a graduate student at the Harvard Graduate School of Education, where she studies Education Leadership, Organizations and Entrepreneurship and Higher Education. She previously worked as a Captain and University Instructor on college study-abroad sailing vessels. Realizing how much she grew during challenging, immersive learning experiences, Carolyn developed a passion for experiential teaching and mentoring others as they explore and grow. She is always delighted to talk to others about sailing, scuba diving, non-traditional careers, gap-years, traveling in your teens and 20s, education and how to figure out what you want to do next.

Carolyn holds a Bachelor's degree in International Relations from Brown University.
